Small Actions To Make Big Changes

CONNECT WITH SOMEONE

Are they okay? · Are you okay? · Check in with your support network · Connect with someone new · A sense of belonging and community can help reduce feelings of loneliness.

PRIORITISE SLEEP

Take small steps to improve your bedtime routine.
Wind down before bed by minimizing your screen time · Make your bedroom a 'tech-free' zone · Create a clean and restful sleep environment · Jot down what's on your mind and set it aside for tomorrow · Avoid caffeine after 4pm.

MOVE IN YOUR OWN WAY

Get moving the way you want to. This could be walking, running, yoga, stretches, doing some gardening. Move in a way you'll enjoy, get those endorphins flowing and let off some steam.

SPEND TIME IN NATURE

Take some time out of your day to step outside, get some fresh air and spend time in nature. This could be eating your lunch outside, or taking a short work after work. Simulate your senses and look at the beauty of nature

BREATHE DEEP

Your breath is a powerful tool to help with stress reduction and relaxation. Short, shallow breaths can heighten anxiety so being conscious and taking time to breathe deep helps us shift into a relaxation mode.

PRACTICE MINDFULNESS

Practicing mindfulness allows you to focus on the here and now. It aids self-awareness, helps you practice emotional regulation and control. You can actively practice during a designated mindfulness session or be mindful of your all five of your sense whilst participating in an activity, such as a nature walk.

#LittleByLittle

MINUTES ON THE CLOCK

10

minutes of consecutive standing time. This might seem obvious but many of us do not do it enough in the modern working environment! Take 10 minutes a day to get that blood circulating around!

20

minutes of simply being outdoors in nature a day can improve our mental wellbeing, not just physical. No need for strenuous activity, walking in the green will keep out mental fitness lean!

30 minutes to wind down and relax before bed at least. No screens, no work in sight. Take this time for yourself, take a bath, read a book, have some tea, dedicate 30 minutes to yourself.

Wellbeing tip of the week – the power of music

Research suggests that music stimulates the body's natural feel good chemicals, such as endorphins and oxytocin. This can help energise our mood, manage stress and allow us to express feelings. Many of us can relate to certain pieces of music and find comfort from the words in a song.

This week, take some time to listen to two or three of your favourite songs that hold special meaning to you - whether that means dancing around the living room or relaxing in your favourite chair; let music support your wellbeing. You could share your choices with your friends, family or colleagues.

Year 7

Truanting:We have students truanting in the toilets and playgrounds.

Solution:Have 3 or 4 teachers that aren't teaching walk around the block they are in and check the toilets and each stall to make sure no pupils are in there.

Problems: Those 3 or 4 teachers not being able to mark or read emails.

Feedback:

DMc replied and said that this is something that we are trying to do with the welfare walks. Leaving toilets open during lesson time means that students will use this as a place to truant. The welfare walks are meant to minimise this. We are aware of the regular traunts who are finding opportunities with doors being left unlocked by staff.

ANa said that there aren’t enough teachers who have the spare time to be added to the welfare walks.

Whole School issues

Request: Non Uniform Day to raise money for Crisis.

Solution:

1. Two lines outside of the school. One with uniform and one without. The one with must pay £1 and the one without go straight in.
2. During form time, the form tutor can collect the money (£1) and tick off the names from a list. The form tutor will be able to see whether those out of uniform have paid or not.
3. Form tutors can discreetly discuss with students who may be having financial issues and make sure that they are not left out.
